A 47-year-old lady presented with a two-week history of right flank pain. She was apyrexic, but had a raised white cell count. She had a past medical history of renal calculi. Following admission blood tests she was diagnosed as having diabetes mellitus. An ultrasound imaging detected some abnormalities (Panel A) and a computed tomography (CT) scan was done. The CT (Panel B) image is shown above.

What is the diagnosis?

Answer: refer to page 211