A young man presented with high-grade fever. Clinical examination revealed a loud systolic murmur at the lower sternal edge. He is otherwise fit and well with no significant past illnesses. He does, however, have a history of intravenous drug abuse. An echocardiogram was done (Panel). (To watch the video please go to the online version and click on the image).

What is the abnormality and what is the diagnosis?

Answer: refer to page 59

Correspondence author: Ezam EMRAM,
Division of Cardiology, Department of Medicine,
RIPAS Hospital, Bandar Seri Begawan BA 1710,
Brunei Darussalam.
Tel: +673 2242424
E mail: ezam.emran@gmail.com